Recycling center now accepts additional items

As of Oct. 1, the base recycling center has expanded its recycling program to help all users.

The center, which is under the 2nd Bomb Wing, home to Air Force Global Strike Command, lost funding for their recycling program more than two years ago and had to cut back on manning and items accepted.

"At the time, the government funding that was paying for 10 contracted personnel was cut, then the worldwide recycling markets just took a dive," said Alfredo Garza, Barksdale recycling manager. "For example, cardboard, our biggest commodity, was selling for $250 a ton. After the economy slowed down, it went down to $15 a ton, pretty much overnight."

The recycling center, which until recently only accepted cardboard and high-grade paper, now accepts mixed paper, bagged shredded paper, junk mail, brown bags, newspapers, magazines, catalogs, polyethylene terephthalate No. 1 plastic bottles such as water and soda bottles, high-density polyethylene No. 2 plastic jugs such as milk jugs, and aluminum cans.

"It's taken about two years, but the commodity markets are slowly coming back," Garza said.

With the additional accepted recyclables, there are still some restrictions. Glass, wood, scrap metal and trash are still not accepted at the recycling center. "There is just no market for glass in this area," Garza said. "We've researched all the markets, tried to sell it and even tried to give it away to local glass companies, but no one wants it since they cannot use it."

On average, the United States throws away approximately 25 percent more garbage during the holidays than any other time during the year. To help alleviate some of that waste, the center will be gathering wrapping paper and Christmas trees as they have in past years. "We collect Christmas trees and give Airmen from the 2nd Munitions Squadron weapons load crew perform safe maintenance checks to prepare for a no-notice Nuclear Surety Inspection on Oct. 7. An NSI is designed to evaluate a unit's ability to execute nuclear operations in a safe, secure and reliable manner.

Wing performs well on POP-UP INSPECTION

By Master Sgt. Mary Davis
2nd Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Members of the 2nd Bomb Wing showcased their professionalism, expertise and pride Oct. 12-14 during a no-notice Limited Nuclear Surety Inspection that focused on several areas of the wing's strategic deterrence mission.

Air Force Global Strike Command inspectors, accompanied by observers from the Air Force Inspection Agency and U.S. Strategic Command, evaluated areas of maintenance and security during the assessment. Collectively, the wing received the highest rating of "satisfactory."

Limited nuclear surety inspections are extremely detailed and demand the highest standards of compliance and accountability, officials have said.

Col. Scott Hoover, 2nd Mission Support Group commander, said the team is judged by how it enables the missions of others. He said he is proud of the security forces Airmen, the Wing's emergency responders, the logistics readiness squadron and Personal Reliability Program professionals.

"The awesome Airmen of the Mighty Deuce once again demonstrated their outstanding professionalism, performance and pride. No one does the strategic deterrence mission better than this great 2nd Bomb Wing — these airmen are truly 'Second to None.'"

Col. Timothy Fay, 2nd Bomb Wing commander

"Truly on the backs of our NCOs and Airmen, our wing succeeded in this tough inspection — one of many challenges they faced throughout the year," Colonel Hoover said. "I am humbled and proud to serve with our Airmen."

Members of the 2nd Maintenance Group also demonstrated their professional skills, which contributed to the overall success, wing officials said.

"I am extremely proud of the professionalism and technical expertise demonstrated by our maintainers, especially the load crew tasked to perform the technical operation for the IG team," said Col. Charles Johnson, 2nd Maintenance Group commander. "It takes the entire maintenance team working together to set the load team up for success. Our maintenance team did a great job and the load crew did very well under pressure."

Col. Timothy Fay, 2nd BW commander, applauded Team Barksdale for their superior performance and commitment to excellence.

"The awesome Airmen of the Mighty Deuce once again demonstrated their outstanding professionalism, performance and pride. No one does the strategic deterrence mission better than this great 2nd Bomb Wing — these Airmen are truly 'Second to None,'" the commander said.

Air Force Inspection Agency members came to Barksdale from Kirtland AFB, N.M. U.S. Strategic Command inspectors are headquartered at Offutt AFB, Neb.

'Build Green, Fly Blue'

By John F. McLaughlin III

2nd Civil Engineer Squadron

October is National Energy Awareness Month and this year's slogan is "Build Green, Fly Blue." The Air Force has made a commitment to leaner installations, cleaner sources and smarter decisions through October and beyond.

While energy should be a consideration in all we do here, October is the time to do more than just conserve energy; it is the time to inform everyone at Barksdale and Air Force Global Strike Command on what can be done to conserve energy on an individual level.

The Department of Defense has instructed the military to reduce its energy usage 3 percent per year since 2003 with a grand total of a 30 percent reduction by 2015. With an estimated 20 percent of energy used in the United States wasted, most of the opportunities to conserve energy are in the workspace.

Barksdale spent $7.6 million on utilities last year, 76 percent of which was electricity. Since it's the most expensive utility, electricity has the most opportunity for conservation. The best cost-effective way to conserve electricity is by reducing the amount wasted.

Lighting awareness provides a cheap and effective way to reduce electric waste. Night lighting operating in the daytime and lighting in areas where windows and doors provide sufficient sunlight are ready examples of wasted energy.

Each individual should take initiative and turn off lights whenever they leave a room and encourage others to do the same. Remind people in the office that the last person to leave needs to turn out the lights. Establish nightly and weekend checklists for turning off unnecessary lighting.

There are everyday opportunities to reduce wasted energy, so everyone should be vigilant and reduce waste where it is found. Reducing energy use by being mindful of our work environment as well as using energy efficient equipment should always be a priority.

Judge advocate general's corps announces law school programs

By Jennifer Washington

2nd Bomb Wing legal office

Applications for the Funded Legal Education Program and Excess Leave Program are accepted from Jan. 1 through March 1. Interested officers with the 2nd Bomb Wing and Air Force Global Strike Command are encouraged to compete for these two legal studies programs.

"Our Air Force missions are constantly changing, and commanders deserve to have access to legal advisors with a broad background of military experiences," said Lt. Col. Steve Dubriske, 2nd BW staff judge advocate. "The FLEP and ELP will ensure that we can continue to maintain a corps of officers whose military experience complements their legal training, thereby providing commanders with the highest caliber of legal support."

According to Colonel Dubriske, Air Force JAGs do more than just provide legal assistance. In addition to prosecuting and defending clients brought before court-martial, JAG officers routinely participate in nearly every facet of the Air Force mission, including developing and acquiring weapons systems, ensuring availability of airspace and ranges where those systems are tested and operated, consulting with commanders about how those systems are employed in armed conflict, and assisting commanders in the day-to-day running of military installations around the world.

"Every facet of today's Air Force mission is bound by elements of the law," he said.

The FLEP is a paid legal studies program for active-duty Air Force commissioned officers. Participants receive full pay, allowances and tuition. FLEP applicants must have between two and six years active-duty service (enlisted or commissioned) and must be in the pay grade O-3 or below as of the day they begin law school. The FLEP is subject to tuition limitations and positions may be limited due to overall funding availability. The tuition limit for academic year 2010 was set at approximately $16,000 per year, but this amount may change year-to-year.

The ELP is an unpaid legal studies program for Air Force officers. ELP participants do not receive pay and allowances but remain on active duty for retirement eligibility and benefits purposes. ELP applicants must have between two and 10 years active-duty service and must be in the pay grade O-3 or below as of the first day of law school.

Barksdale supports domestic violence awareness

By 2nd Lt. Victoria Lalich

2nd Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Col. Timothy Fay, 2nd Bomb Wing commander, signed a formal proclamation Oct. 8 directing Barksdale Airmen to support October as National Domestic Violence Awareness Month. The proclamation displays Barksdale's commitment to the safety, health and wellness of its families and community.

Throughout the month, the Family Advocacy Center has had several information booths and activities planned to help members of the 2nd Bomb Wing, Air Force Global Strike Command and the 917th Air Reserve Wing to increase their awareness to the dangerous patterns of abusive behaviors including physical, emotional and psychological attacks, which may frequent unhealthy relationships.

The National Domestic Violence Awareness Month Web site states, "To stop domestic violence, we all need to be part of the solution." Here at Barksdale, the Family Advocacy Center plays a key role in helping local families recognize the symptoms of unhealthy relationships and offers support and counseling options for those seeking help.

"These situations are frequently caused by stress, something that is no stranger to military members," said Russell Cook, 2nd Medical Operations

Col. Timothy Fay, 2nd Bomb Wing commander, signs a proclamation Oct. 8 at the 2nd Medical Group. The proclamation designates October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month at Barksdale.

Squadron family advocacy outreach manager. "At Barksdale, we work unusually long hours. We come home expecting to relax and forget about the difficult day we've had, but we forget that our spouse wants to spend some of that time with us. We get irritated at something they say and may respond negatively, and then the situation spirals out of control."

According to the DVAM Web site, women are more likely to be victims of physical abuse, while men are more likely to be victims of emotional abuse. Unfortunately, neither is likely to seek help for these issues.

"Managing these situations is one of Family Advocacy's specialties," Cook said. Located on the third floor of the Barksdale Clinic, Family Advocacy offers a variety of walk-in counseling options and classes for free for all Airmen and their families — and all are confidential.

"One of the biggest reasons people don't come in is that they are worried we are going to talk to their commander or first sergeant, but that just isn't the case," Cook said. "Obviously, we prefer for Airmen to take advantage of our privileged communication before things at home get out of hand. Think about it, if the situation gets bad enough and security forces are called, your commander will definitely be notified."

Besides helping with relationships, Family Advocacy also offers counseling for those struggling with alcohol or suicidal thoughts and even classes on anger management, he added. There is a class running this month and more planned for upcoming months.

"If you feel like there's an issue," Cook concluded, "Come talk to us. We can help you work it out."

Memorandum for Barksdale personnel

BY 2 AMDS/SGPB
PUBLIC NOTIFICATION OF NONCOMPLIANCE — tier 2 bacteriological maximum contaminant level violation
 Your Barksdale water safety is consistently monitored on a weekly basis for bacteriological contamination by Bioenvironmental Engineering and the Louisiana State Laboratory in Shreveport. This notification is to inform you that during the reporting period of Sept. 1-30, the Barksdale Air Force Base Public Water System ID No. 1015022 violated the maximum contaminant level of coliform bacteria as set forth in the State and Federal Primary Drinking Water Regulations [Part XII of the Louisiana State Sanitary Code (LAC 51:XII)].

This is not an emergency. If it had been you would have been notified immediately. Total coliform bacteria are generally not harmful themselves. Coliforms are bacteria that are naturally present in the environment and are used as an indicator that other potentially harmful bacteria may be present. Coliforms were found in more samples than allowed and this was a warning of potential problems.

Usually, coliforms are a sign there could be a problem with the treatment or distribution system (pipes). Whenever we detect coliform bacteria in any sample, we do follow-up testing to see if other bacteria of greater concern, such as fecal coliform or E. coli, are present. We did not find any of these bacteria in our subsequent testing. If we had, you would have been notified immediately.

You do not need to boil your water or take other corrective actions. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor.

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants and some elderly may be at increased risk. These people should seek advice from their health care providers about drinking water. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's safe drinking water hot line at (800) 426-4791.

Bacteria are commonly found in any water source. Chlorine is added to drinking water to kill bacteria that may form in the water. Bioenvironmental Engineering has not yet been able to pinpoint a direct cause for the elevated number of samples testing positive for coliform bacteria. We are replacing the water sampling point at which we have received multiple positive results. We are also working in conjunction with the Louisiana State Department of Health and Hospitals and the Louisiana State Laboratory to identify any other underlying cause. Although testing has indicated the presence of coliform bacteria, we have found no evidence of harmful bacteria in our water distribution system.

Providing the installation with clean drinking water is a coordinated effort between personnel in the 2nd Civil Engineer Squadron and the 2nd Medical Group. We are dedicated to providing the base populace with the highest quality drinking water. If you would like additional information or have questions regarding the quality of the drinking water, please call Bioenvironmental Engineering at (318) 456-6730.

Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, especially those who may not have received this notice directly (for example, people in apartments, nursing homes, schools and businesses). You can do this by posting this notice in a public place or distributing by hand or mail.

Wing intelligence office is commander's informational hub

By Airman 1st Class Allison M. Boehm
 2nd Bomb Wing Public Affairs

From planning detailed missions for aircraft to analyzing cyber threats on military networks, Barksdale's wing intelligence office is an integral component to providing the 2nd Bomb Wing commander and his forces the most current and relevant intelligence to support all 2 BW missions.

"Intel provides the answer to any 'why' question: Why are we going to war? Why is this information important? We are there to provide the intelligence scenarios, to review the facts and provide accurate intelligence estimates of the situation and provide probable courses of action for the enemy so that we can remain one step ahead of our adversaries at all times," said Staff Sgt. Marcus O'Sullivan, 2nd Operations Group Intelligence NCO in charge of operations intelligence support.

With that responsibility, the 2 OGI directly impacts Barksdale's mission, which is home to Air Force Global Strike Command.

"Without Intel, aircraft would be unaware of threats, security forces wouldn't know who might be a threat to the base and its populace, and deploying members would have a hard time knowing what might harm them downrange," said Tech. Sgt. Dale Coonfield, 2 OGI section chief of intelligence analysis. "Leaders and planners need the most current information to make correct decisions. Without Intel, you basically 'fly blind' into any operation."

As part of their mission, the 2 OGI works to provide mission support, facilitate global strike and expeditionary capability to geographic commanders and provide full spectrum B-52 combat support. Coincidentally, that is also what makes their mission unique from the rest of the Air Force Intel shops.

"Supporting the 2 BW is unique in that we support a nuclear-capable aircraft and an older, larger airframe," Sergeant Coonfield said. "Threats that may not affect other airframes will affect ours; so extra care has to be taken when we look at things that can harm our aircraft and crew members. That coupled with our global presence makes supporting the 2 BW a challenge for any Intel professional."

Commonly referred to as "jacks-of-all-trades," Intel professionals experience all aspects of the intelligence career field.

"We provide a variety of support," Sergeant O'Sullivan said. "From compiling and providing briefings or updates to working closely with other agencies to ensure force protection is upheld, there are numerous tasks we are responsible for."

Intel Airmen's knowledge, training and experience help ensure Barksdale remains mission capable, anytime, anywhere.

them to the base forestry office," Garza said. "They'll take the trees and put them into the lakes around base to create fish habitats."

Residents of base housing will not have their recycling collection affected by this change at the recycling center. The contracting company will continue to pick up recyclables, including glass from base housing at least three times per month.

"Our contract has not changed, and it won't change as far as what they pick up," said Andrew Smith, the Landings at Barksdale assistant manager.

Garza said recycling is not only beneficial to the environment, but also cuts down on trips to the Dumpster to throw away bags of trash.

"The more people recycle, the more our items will get used over and over," he said. "Any given aluminum can in use today has been recycled up to 10 times, and any cardboard boxes that you get are made of materials recycled at least six times."

Garza said his biggest concern at the moment is getting previous recyclers to come back out and support the center once again.

"When we stopped taking a lot of the items, I think we got people out of the habit of recycling," he said. "Retirees would come out and drop stuff off, and we had a lot of parents trying to teach their children about recycling; we want to try to get everyone back out here."

"We are going to keep trying to get the word out there and advertise. We are slowly seeing people starting to put recyclables in the bins again," he said.

Briefly

Use of weight control drugs/surgery

All active-duty members are assigned a primary care manager at the AF Medical Treatment Facility. It is the member's duty and responsibility to communicate any care received from outside providers (doctors) in the civilian community. Any procedures, services and all medications prescribed by a civilian provider, whether member personally paid for them, must be reported and communicated to the member's PCM.

Per AF instruction 44-102, section 3.5 (use of weight-control drugs and surgery), weight-control medication is not approved for routine use in overweight active-duty members and will not be a standard part of the Medical Treatment Facility Formulary.

Short-term use of weight control medication may be considered in carefully selected overweight patients. This includes patients with a body mass index of 30 kg/m² or greater, or those with a BMI equal to or greater than 27 with other significant risk factors such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol or insulin resistance problems. These specific individuals will require a detailed medication evaluation and tests in conjunction with behavioral modification.

If an active-duty member is placed on these drugs, there must also be specific guidelines pertaining to profiles, PRP and flying status. If used, a profile is required prohibiting deployment for the duration of the short-term supervised therapy.

Active-duty members are not authorized to obtain weight-reduction surgical procedures.

If there are any questions or concerns, contact your PCM at the medical treatment facility.

Hoban Hall closure

Hoban Hall will be closed through Nov. 12 for renovations.

Tricare until age 26

Under national health care reform provisions that recently went into effect, Tricare already meets or exceeds all of them at low or no cost to military and retiree families.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148) requires civilian health plans that provide medical coverage to children to make that coverage available until the child turns 26. The act did not give the Department of Defense the authority to offer this benefit through Tricare.

There are provisions in the Senate and House versions of the pending National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2011 that would extend dependent medical coverage up to age 26 via a premium-based program. If enacted into law, Tricare will make every effort to implement its provisions as soon as possible.

No trespassing

Trespassing in the area around the firing range is not only illegal but dangerous. A chain-link fence adjacent to the flight line encloses this area. Personnel with a valid need for entry into this area should call 2nd Security Forces Squadron Combat Arms at 456-2509 for authorization. Call Master Sgt. John Franklin at 456-2538 or Tech. Sgt.
